Rancher gets big fine in land-use violaton

By DAVID LELAND

THE FINAL chapter has closed on what officials say is the largest land-use violation in the state of California.

During a press conference held Wednesday, state and county representatives said that John Murphy, Jr. has been fined $125,000 and ordered restore almost 8 miles of road on his Little Horse Ranch, which could cost the Arizona attorney as much as $200,000.

The $125,000 represents the largest civil penalty in the history of Monterey County, according to 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

"We have made it very clear that this type of activity is not to be tolerated," said Strasser Kauffman, adding that the settlement requires Murphy to remove more than 14,500 cubic yards of material from stream crossings and road banks. "Mr. Murphy has been required to undo the damage and restore the land."

Under a settlement moderated by retired Justice James Scott, formerly of the 6th District Court of Appeals, Murphy must abide by an erosion-control plan composed by Bill Weaver of Pacific Watershed Associates. The work must be completed by Dec. 31.

After completion of the erosion control and road closure, the judgment bars Murphy from doing anything which would interfere with the natural restoration of the roads such as removing fallen trees or slides or vegetation.

"He cannot even operate a motorized device (on the ranch)," Strasser Kauffman said.

Peter Douglas, executive director of the Coastal Commission lauded the joint effort between the county, District Attorney's Office and his agency.

"There is no question that this should send a message to those who would be inclined to violate the Coastal Act," he said, adding that Gov. Pete Wilson is currently poised to sign a bill that would make it easier to enforce violations of the Coastal Act.

It has been almost three years since the Monterey County District Attorney's Office accused Murphy of grading 14.5 miles of Road on his Little Horse Ranch.

Murphy constantly maintained that he was simply restoring fire roads that already existed on the land.

The 5,000-acre ranch is located in steep coastal mountains roughly eight miles south of Carmel, east of Highway 1. Elevations range from about 1,000 feet in the lower portion of Wildcat Canyon to nearly 3,500 feet along ridge roads.

The issue of erosion control on the ranch has been tossed about in court since December of 1988, when charges against Murphy were initially filed.

In October of 1989, Murphy agreed to file an application for an emergency coastal development permit for erosion-control measures.

Dale Ellis, county zoning administrator, approved Murphy's permit later that month, attaching conditions. After a hearing, the court ruled that the defendants must continue working with the county to come up with a workable plan.

Subsequently Ellis ruled that no erosion control could take place on the property unless it took in all the measures of the county's emergency coastal development permit.

The state Coastal Commission agreed with the county in March of 1990.

However, that September, Murphy chose to ignore an erosion-control plan which received the blessing of the county and state Fish & Game.

Murphy's defense team won a change of venue to San Jose last year, where the case was decided.

Hatton Canyon final EIS to 'go public' soon

THE 30-day review period for the long-awaited final environmental impact statement for the proposed Hatton Canyon will begin Oct. 11.

Caltrans' $33.4 million project includes construction of a 2.8-mile highway on new alignment through Hatton Canyon from south of the Carmel River to Highway 68, an interchange a Carmel Valley Road and new bridge across the Carmel River.

"Public participation is critically important," said Tom Pollock, district director, who announced the document's release Oct. 8. "I invite everyone who has an interest in this project to study the final EIS to understand the key issues and selected alternative."

For almost five years, the release of the final EIS, which needed approval from the Federal Highway Administration, was stalled while alternatives to a freeway through the canyon were studied.

Caltrans has consistantly maintained that the proposed highway is the only safe way to relieve the traffic gridlock on Highway 1. Others suggest that the existing freeway merely be widened to four lanes.

Pollock said that Caltrans, after listening to public input, made the following modifications to its plan:

• The southbound offramp at Carpenter Street now aligns with the existing highway instead of Carpenter Street, providing for more direct access to Carmel via Ocean Avenue and reducing traffic impacts on Carpenter Street.

• In Hatton Canyon reduced speeds has permitted revisions in the alignment and grading requirements. Pollock said this action has lessened impacts to existing wetlands, native Monterey Pines and Hickman's Onions.

• Because of the reduced speed in the canyon, the height of the highway between Carmel Valley Road and Rio Road has been lowered. North of Rio Road the alignment has been lowered as much as 7 feet, and an average of 4.5 feet to the south. At one location, adjacent to the Barnyard, the centerline elevation of the new highway is 18 inches below existing ground.

• The second crossing of the Carmel River was eliminated by removal of the existing bridge. The new bridge alignment has been moved to the west, minimizing impacts to agricultural lands.

Pollock said Caltrans will operate a local informational phone line to provide information and answer an questions. That number is 624-8904.

Caltrans will also sponsor an open house from 1 to 8 p.m. Friday Nov. 1 and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday, Nov. 2 at the Mission Inn, located at Highway 1 and Rio Road.

If the process moves forward as planned, Pollock said the next stage would be final design, where a multi-agency team of representatives from local, state and federal agencies will refine the project and attempt to minimize environmental impacts.

"We look forward to continuing our close work with the citizens advisory committee and various resource agencies involved in this vital project," Pollock said. "Working together we can, and will, develop a transportation system of great benefit to everyone. One that fits the character of the area and will be the most environmentally sensitive project possible."

The final EIS is available for review at libraries in Carmel, Carmel Valley and Monterey, as well as planning departments in Carmel and Monterey.

Spirited response

Dear Editor:

No one regrets more than I that a lengthy paragraph was inadvertently missing from my Sept. 19th article on the Carmel Foundation. This dealt with the many accomplishments of Mrs. Betty Plank during the years she served so brilliantly as the Foundation's Executive Director.

I do think, however, that the recent eloquent letters to the Pine Cone from Ms. Iris Harris and Dr. Iona Logie comprised a splendid and well-deserved tribute to Mrs. Plank.

I send my apologies to Mrs. Plank and my gratitude to Ms. Harris and Dr. Logie, who are further examples of what the "Spirit of Carmel" is all about.

Fine work and effort

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association I would like to thank the Diamond Jubilee Celebration Committee for all their fine work and effort in putting together a delightful array of events to commemorate Carmel's 75th Anniversary.

Starting with the party at the Post Office and ending with the Diamond Dance, it has been a wonderful experience for the gathering together of old friends and the making of new ones. Thoughts and ideas for a future Carmel - some in the process, some still to come - were displayed.

Again, our congratulations to a committee that thought things through and gave us all an event to be proud of. Thank you.

Mission Ranch hold-up

Dear Editor:

After reading about the hold-up on the remodeling of the Mission Ranch Restaurant by a Gary Tate from the Parks District, I was fighting mad.

This pipsqueak of a man to hold this remodeling up and the delay the work and keep 50 employees out of a job is criminal.

These employees should sue this Gary Tate for holding up their return to work and stick him for everything they can.

Clint Eastwood has done a awful lot for this city, I would think people would bend over backwards to speed up his construction instead of holding him back.

Clint kept the ranch from falling into the wrong hands to start with when he purchased it several years ago.

Also, we people of Carmel are being denied one of our favorite dining spots and piano bar while it has been put on hold by this insignificant matter.

This also keeps the City of Carmel from receiving tax money while the Mission Ranch Restaurant is closed.

Come on folks of Carmel, help get rid of this fellow Tate and on with the show.

Basic protection

Dear Editor:

In this country, over 300,000 horses per year are sent to slaughter for human consumption. At present, California slaughter-bound horses are not afforded the basic protection against abuse provided for cattle and sheep.

A bill is presently before the Governor to provide for protection against the most cruel of these abuses. Lobbyists are pressuring the governor to veto this bill, which has been passed by both the Assembly and the Senate.

Please write or phone the governor in support of Assembly Bill 500. Gov. Pete Wilson, State Capitol, Sacramento, CA 95814, telephone number (916) 445-2841.

Eyesore parking lot

Dear Editor:

Carmel's Mayor Jean Grace deserves to be commended for standing up to an obsessed state Department of Parks and Recreation in its determination to build an eyesore parking lot at Monastery Beach.

Apparently eager to demonstrate its disdain for conservationists, the Parks Department has crudely proposed to run an access road right through a stand of eucalyptus trees at the most bucolic little grotto on the beach. The road would lead to a parking lot which would blight the coastal viewshed across the existing meadow—a development which would outrageously contradict the Coastal Commission's founding principles.

To make matters worse, the access road would ruin the charming natural setting of the historic old Bay School, one of the oldest in the region, just for the increasingly obscene purpose of accommodating motorists.

The combined opposition of the nearby City of Carmel's mayor and the Monterey County Planning Commission (which rejected the parking lot by a 6-0 vote) should have settled the matter.

But the state government has insulted the residents of Monterey County by appealing the issue to the California Coastal Commission. Obviously, no one is likely to accuse the Bush clone of hoping to be remembered as the "Environmental Governor."

Gov. Wilson's protestations about the state's fiscal crisis only aggravate the insult of his repeated attempts to impose unwanted developments on the Carmel/Carmel Valley area. The costs of such developments have clearly served the political tactics of Republican Govs. Deukmejian and Wilson in their perennial pandering to the labor unions' lust for jobs and the repressive hedonistic craving for convenience of urban Californians.

But that strategy won't work here. The Carmelite Monastery situated above the beach, an institution dedicated to spiritual values, stands in stark contrast to the government's crass political pragmatism in arrogantly foisting California's urban anti-culture on us. What a symbolical challenge for our community!

Let's vindicate the monastics in their commitment to spirituality and Mother Nature. The grandiose State of California can take all its big city votes and elect to spread its asphalt world somewhere else. Try Siberia. They're democratic now, you know.

Slow down and enjoy

Dear Editor:

It was with open-mouthed disbelief I read that the EPA had given its blessing to the Hatton Canyon freeway. Surely they must realize the freeway is growth inducing, that without it there are a number of large subdivisions that could not be built.

If growth and freeways are considered an environment to be protected by the EPA then they must feel they had the very height of success in Los Angeles where both are rampant.

I might add that freeways in Los Angeles are constantly being enlarged to carry capacities they have outgrown. The Hatton Canyon freeway would meet the same fate so why not limit growth, have an interchange at Carmel Valley Road, synchronize the signals on Rio Road and slow down and enjoy, not destroy our environment.

Battle of words

Dear Editor:

It seems like many moons ago that there was great controversy over construction of the Carmel Hill Freeway. I was a vocal opponent because I loved the scenic beauty of the trees along the road. How wrong I was, and I admit it.

It appears that ever since then, we have had an interminable battle of words over the Hatton Canyon Freeway. With due respect for the rights of people to take a stand on the issue, I would hope that at some point common sense would prevail and the reality of our problem would be recognized. There is a definite need today for resolving the congestion on Highway 1. I support it unequivocally.

If a patient is in need of open-heart surgery, they don't just use the same artery to bring blood to the heart. They reroute a healthy artery to the heart.

The lack of foresight and total disregard of the impact of a four-lane widened highway on the existing highway shows a callous and selfish disregard of our future high school students and faculty who will be exposed to the increased air and noise pollution. They are to be cut off from the mainstream of the community.

The EPA has now agreed that the Hatton Canyon Freeway is the least damaging practical alternative. Continued delays via lawsuits may well call for a countersuit for harassment and endangerment of public health and safety. We are not an intolerant society. Or are we?

Kudos to Kiwanis

Dear Editor:

Kudos to the Carmel Kiwanis. They served more than 300 salmon dinners at the Church of the Wayfarer on Friday night (Sept. 20) to raise money for their scholarship fund.

Chef Fred (Pernille's) Fouzenmayeh haggled for the fresh catch that morning on the wharf and then prepared it. His "sue"chef George Brehmer, winner of the ticket contest, and Sharon Christianson filled breadbaskets and dessert bowls. Chuck Dawson donated the organically grown mixed vegetables and tomatoes, as well as the table decorations so artfully arranged by Judy Winslow.

Les Erickson's and Gaspar Cardinale's hosting and organizational skills were everywhere apparent as they tactfully maneuvered so many diners. Rev. Charles Anker was in full control of his church's kitchen sink and dishwasher. Waiters included president Jeff Scott, Gary Ritter. Waitresses were Shirley Hansens and Jutta Resse. Ticket Czar Gary Duffel waited our table with skill and eclat. All things considered, I should have left a tip....for the kids and the Kiwanis...

Unnecessary trails

Dear Editor:

One of the values of the Mission Ranch is that we can enjoy a view of Point Lobos and the sea, the meadow, and the sheep, without all these damn people walking through.

It would be nice of Mr. Tate if he'd forget his obsession with an unnecessary trail-system.

Muchas gracias

Dear Editor:

This past weekend I went to a bridal shower in Salinas. Some how we found time to hit the Clinique sale at Macy's in Monterey. The girl who helped me was from my home town.

After her pleasantness I visited a neat souvenir shop on Ocean Avenue and the man working there was very helpful. latter in Carmel, we all ate at the General Store Restaurant and were treated very nicely.

Upon leaving Sunday, I noticed I left my disposable Kodak camera in the public bathroom (on the toilet paper dispenser in the stall with the door), at Del Mar Beach at the end of Ocean Avenue on Saturday evening, Sept. 14, around 7:30 p.m.

On Monday morning, Sept. 16 I called the Carmel Department of Parks and Recreation and was again greeted by a nice helpful lady on the phone. She gave me the number of the city hall. The nice lady at the city hall explained that all lost articles are turned in to the police station. Then, I called the Carmel Police station and spoke with a very helpful female officer.

Although my camera hasn't been turned in "YET" I wanted to say, "muchas gracias" publicly to all the nice people in Monterey and Carmel. Also, if someone finds my camera, please turn it in to the police station—they have my address.

Supervisors reluctantly OK Mahroom project

OVERRULING CONCERNED High Meadows residents, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on Tuesday approved a 36-condominium project for that area.

Working under the mandate of Superior Court Judge Richard Silver, who ruled that that last summer that Majid and Adiba Mahroom had the right to construct their project, supervisors found that "overriding circumstances" outweighed environmental concerns.

High Meadows residents testified that the project, in the planning stages for 10 years, would increase traffic, block views and lower property values.

About 70 mature Monterey Pine trees will be removed to accommodate the project, according to county planning staff.

Voting against the project, which will see three, two-story buildings, were Supervisors Karin Strasser Kauffman and Marc Del Piero.

"This court-ordered process makes a mockery of the land use planning authority of the county," said Strasser Kauffman, adding that key elements of the environmental document were deleted. "The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) was turned on its head."

Strasser Kauffman said that she believed Silver's ruling, which told the board to approve the project and pay the Mahrooms $570,000 because of delays in the process, usurped the county's land-use planning ability.

Anne McGowan, an attorney representing the High Meadow Outlook Homeowners' Association, said her clients may argue their case when the Mahroom application comes before the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, which currently has a moratorium on new water hookups.

In other action during their Oct. 8 meeting supervisors:

• Formally asked the state Coastal Commission to return an application from the state Parks Department back to the county for consideration.

Supervisors this summer rejected the state's plan for a parking lot at Monastery Beach. That plan was appealed to the state.

The board also notified the public that anyone who shows up at the Oct. 10 meeting will be allowed to testify even if they had not spoken previously on the matter before the board.

Usually testimony at an appeal is reserved for those who have already spoken on the matter.

• Adopted a ban on smoking in all county offices.

Supervisors ruled that all snack bars, cars and yards must be tobacco-free by Nov. 8. The ruling includes the use of any type of tobacco.

Each county manager and supervisor will be given a flier containing tops on how to deal with the smoking problem. Employees who wish to stop smoking will also receive information and counseling.

Sluggish economy hits hard in Carmel's pocketbook

By DAVID LELAND

TO NO one's surprise the nationwide recession has hit Carmel right in its pocketbook, with dipping sales tax leading the way for the local economy to slow to a crawl.

Revenues dealing with construction, building permits and commercial stall permits are anticipated to decline by $42,750, according to city staff. Moreover, a drop in interest rates, the income generated by the city's investment portfolio, is expected to decline by $100,00.

Changes in state law have also affected Carmel, with the cigarette tax anticipated to decline by $12,925 and fine and forfeiture monies expected to ebb by $2,120, both reflecting a 50-percent drop over last year.

To that end, the Carmel City Council last week adopted a revised $8,139,038 biennial budget to see its way through the 1992 fiscal year, $8,472,945, or 4 percent less than the forecast last year.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz told the council that preparing the document was "difficult" because of uncertanties from the state in the form of taxation and poor economic conditions.

"The primary goal is that it was balanced," he said.

The good news is that about two-thirds of the $333,907 downward adjustment was anticipated and programmed into the city's reserve fund last year, which leaves the city with a shortfall of only $111,427.

With no end to the dilemma in sight, Gary Luce, Carmel Business Association president, told the council that as many as 25 percent of the city's rooms are vacant.

If those rooms were filled an additional $900,000 in hostelry tax could be garnered by the city, Luce said.

He added that hostelry-tax revenues are artificially high because inn owners have boosted room rates to compensate for the lack of clientele. Those rates have now topped out and the true recession will begin to show.

For that reason, he said, it was critical the city give the CBA a grant of either $24,000 or $49,000 to be used to lure tourists back to Carmel, specifically people who will stay overnight, attend cultural functions and utilize Carmel eateries.

"They are the only organization that has asked for a grant that increases the income of the city," said Councilman Ken White. "In my mind that is the first time the CBA has done that for us."

But Councilman Jim Wright said he was worried that the hotel-motel segment would benefit most from increased tourism, not the city.

Councilman Bob Fischer said he was annoyed that the council was being unrealistic in its budgetary concerns.

"Let us not deny ourselves and live in a cocoon and say, 'Let's not have tourism,'" said Fischer, adding that hostelry and sales tax dollars allow Carmel to have discretionary income. "The lifestyles we are accustomed to today would be difficult without anybody here."

After much discussion, the council (3-2, with Wright and Mayor Jean Grace dissenting) approved a $17,500 grant for the CBA.

Grace said she supported increased funding for the Carmel Public Library Foundation, which had requested an edowment of $40,000 for books.

The council majority, however, approved an endowment of only $2,500 for the library, saying that they wanted to see how negotiations between the library and the county proceed.

And while the CBA grant represents a raise of $2,500 over last year, it stifles an expensive marketing campaign.

"It's certainly enough to help us with A British Holiday 1991," said Toni Jepson, CBA executive director, referring to an event scheduled for Dec. 6-15. "I'm not unhappy with it (grant). I think we are lucky, I really appreciate the support."

However, both Jepson and Luce agreed that, aside from sending Carmel's promotional brochure to several major markets, the money would not go far.

For example, getaway promotional packages are out of the question, as are TV commercials and trying to tap into the 33-million-member Association of Retired People.

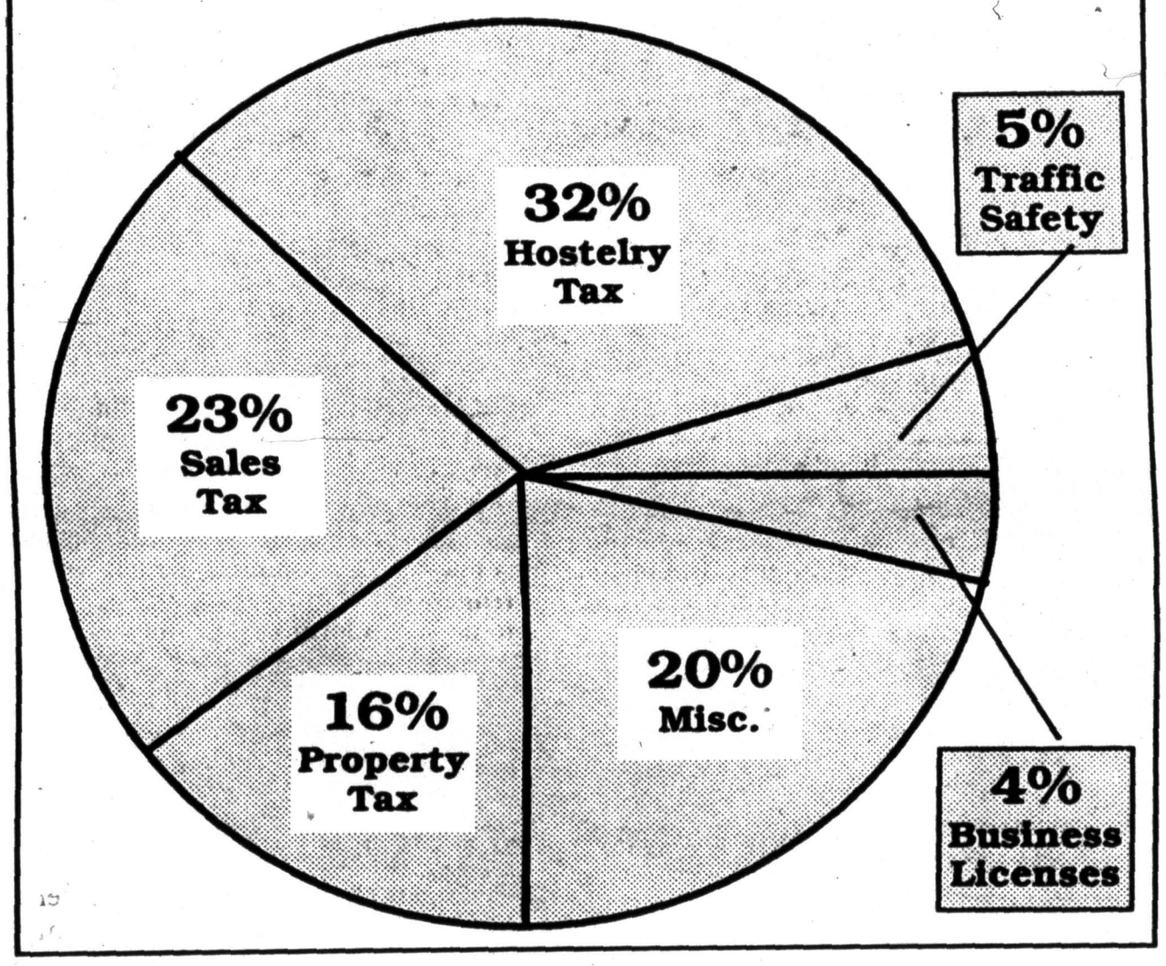
But, hey, promotion is expensive.

"Even $50,000 isn't very much for a marketing plan," Luce said. "If we had gotten that much money it would have only been a beginning."

Other grants approved by the city council include:

Carmel Cherry Foundation ($1,000), Carmel bach Festival ($15,700), Carmel Music Society ($3,315), Carmel Unified School District ($500), Chamber Music Society ($2,640), Children's Experimental Theater ($3,000), Forest Theater Guild ($3,000), Grovemont Community Theater ($1,625), Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula ($1,200), Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra ($1,500), Monterey Bay Chamber Orchestra ($1,500), Monterey County Symphony Association ($5,420), Photographic Center ($980), Tor House Foundation ($490) and various socical service grants totalling $21,739.

What goes into determining the 1991-92 Carmel City budget of $8,139,038? Here is a breakdown of the total:



Teenager remains in coma after head-on crash on Highway 1

A CARMEL High School senior remained on life-support systems this week after suffering severe head injuries in a head-on car crash last Saturday on Highway 1 near Carmel River Bridge.

Robert Johnston, 17, "continues to be critical," according to a nursing supervisor at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. Johnston has been in a coma since the accident.

According to CHS Principal Marie Ishida, Johnston's condition was deteriorating Wednesday and he had been taken off of blood pressure medication.

CHP investigators say the driver, Ian Bobay, 16, a senior at Carmel Valley High School, was travelling at a high rate of speed northbound on Highway 1 at 11:30 p.m. when the accident occurred.

Bobay was operating the accelerator and brake, while Johnston steered the vehicle, according to CHP, who added that both boys had been drinking prior to the accident.

The accident occurred when Johnston steered the car, which was travelling at about 85 mph, onto the dirt shoulder of the road and lost control. CHP say Bobay then attempted to regain control but the car flipped sideways and struck an oncoming car moving southbound, driven by Robert C. Humphrey, 22 of Carmel.

Humphrey suffered minor injuries, as did three youths sitting in the backseat of the vehicle.

CHP say that it could be as long as a month before authorities decide if any charges will be filed against Bobay.

Out of despair comes inner peace for CV men's movement mentor

By DAVID LELAND

DRAWING FROM long-term sobriety and a stopover into the men's movement, David Gordon has been able to quell the pain and sadness that has haunted him since childhood.

In addition to finding an inner peace, Gordon has been able to pass the baton onto a future generation.

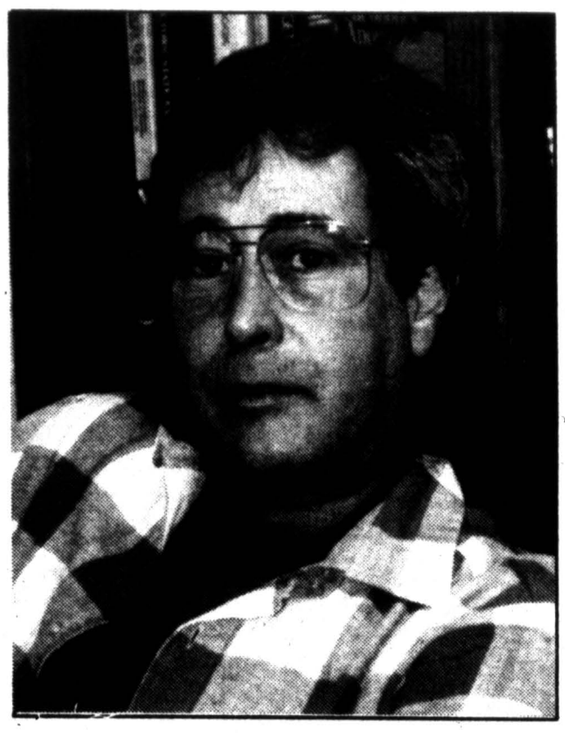
Carmel Valley resident Gordon, who said his father was absent and unloving, resolved several years ago to break that chain of unavailability with his own sons, David, 17, and Scott, 23.

"I made a promise to myself that I would not raise my sons the way that I was raised," explains the soft-spoken Gordon, 49. "My father was the finest businessman I have ever known. But behind closed doors it was as if he wasn't there."

Gordon's father was an all-too-common example of the family system of the '40s, '50s and '60s, where the male was the breadwinner and often absent. It was the mother's job to oversee the family.

Gordon, who, because of his emotional instability, didn't see one of his sons until the boy was 12, knew instinctively that to gain his personal power he needed to bond with his father before it was too late. The opportunity arose several years ago while the elder Gordon was near death.

"The last 40 minutes before his death were spent in my arms. I guided him out," says Gordon, adding that his father's ashes were scattered on his ranch in the eastern portion of the valley. "It was heavy and it was beautiful. It was one of the most intimate times I've spent with anyone in my whole lifetime."



DAVID GORDON

The experience allowed Gordon to place another cobblestone in a path that began 19 years ago when he joined Alcoholics Anonymous. "There's no question that who I am today is a product of AA," says Gordon, who uses spiritual growth to fill in for chemicals. "I don't have to look any further than myself."

In addition, Gordon credits the 12 Steps of AA with allowing him the freedom to grow and explore what has become a burgeoning men's movement led by poet Robert Bly.

"There legitimately is a men's movement going on. It has to do with a vocabulary and initiation," says Gordon, who owns

Men's movement teacher draws from inner peace

Gordon Carpets in Pacific Grove. "It's who we are becoming not from a feminine vocabulary, but from our own language."

To that end, Gordon has established Philemon's Retreat on his 10-acre ranch, where three-day seminars take place.

Named after the spirit guide who appeared before pioneer psychiatrist Carl Jung, Philemon allows men a chance to integrate breathwork, drumming, expressive arts and sweat lodge to access their unconscious being.

The principal topic during his retreats centers upon sex and intimacy, Gordon says.

"Sexuality is the big boogie man for guys," Gordon says.

"They don't want to share their experiences."

During the sweat lodge portion of the weekend retreat, where hot stones are doused with water to create almost-unbearable temperatures, men truly begin to come in touch with their repressed feelings.

"It's a purification ceremony," he says, adding that both his sons are in recovery and take part in his retreats. "You show up with yourself — there's no place to go."

With the 12 Steps serving as the cornerstone of AA, Gordon has become somewhat of an expert, partly because of his many years in practicing the spiritual principals. He recently addressed a nationwide seminar in Atlanta on the "Current Definition of the 12 Steps.

"I've taken the 12 Steps and turned them into experiential living," he says, adding that after initially sobering up and then working on emotional and mental health the work really begins. "We then begin to look at spirituality and ask, 'What's the meaning of life?'"

All this appears to be pretty heady stuff for a man who describes himself as being a "functional illiterate" until the age of 30, or Aug. 15, 1972, when he joined AA.

Since that time, Gordon has received a degree in alcohol counseling from the University of California, Santa Cruz. After receiving his state license, Gordon also counseled at the Steinbeck Clinic.

But he is not in recovery for the money, per se, and enjoys leading recovery groups for the inmates at the California Correctional Facility at Soledad.

"It's not a question of money," says Gordon, who began facilitating men's retreats on the peninsula about five years ago. "What's important is the quality of work that the collective is doing, available and affordable to anyone."

And through it all Gordon continues to grow.

"I continue to learn and create ritual," says Gordon, who believes that modern man must come up with new ceremony and not rely solely on ancient rites. "Our culture in the United States has not allowed for ritual."

So the next time there is a full moon and you hear the sound of conga drums emanating from the valley, take a good listen.

You're hearing the sounds of success.

Big Sur fire volunteers ready to break ground for new fire house

CULMINATING MORE than three years of planning, the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade's firstever Fire House is ready for construction. Commemorating the occasion, the Fire Brigade has scheduled a ground breaking ceremony from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday (Oct. 11). The event, open to the public, will be held at the Post Ranch Inn, on the west side of Highway 1 across from the entrance of Ventana Inn. Signs will then guide attendees to the exact location of the event, which is open to the public. NThis venture is the culmination of more than three years of planning," said Pat Chamberlain, chief of the BSVFB. "We could not have done this without the support of the community and the dedication of the volunteer fire fighters, who have spent thousands of hours training to be the best they can be." The Fire Brigade is in the midst of a fund-raising campaign to cover the out-of-pocket costs associated with construction of the Fire House. The fund-raising effort has thus far brought in $150,000, accomplishing almost one-third of the ultimate goal of $500,000. "We are happy with the progress but know we must continue to actively pursue our funding needs,~ Chamberlain said.

The BSVFB is a non-profit incorporated organization that was established in August 1974. At that time, the Big Sur community felt the need for a local fire agency. Since then, the BSVFB has grown from a 12-member, one-truck outfit to one with 50 plus members, five engines and two 4,000 gallon water tenders. With the exception of five people, the BSVFB consists of volunteers who are not local property owners. But because of their love for the Big Sur Coast, neighbors and visitors, Chamberlain said they have taken on the responsibility for protecting the Coast from fire. The Brigade has sole responsibility for structure fires from the Little Sur River to the county line, some 56 miles. This area encompasses land that has many private residences with some homes having a value of more than $1 million. In addition, the area has facilities that serve more than 2.5 million visitors per year. To achieve continued success, and to allow BSVFB members to work as the professionals they are, Chamberlain said the Fire House is necessary to protect the Brigade's investment in extremely valuable equipment. In addition, the chief said the Fire House will provide the BSVFB with an efficient and central location for training, equipment maintenance, repair and storage. The community and volunteers have expended money and time to equip and maintain the engines and trucks so they can do their jobs to the fullest, Chamberlain noted. Currently, however, the majority of equipment is kept outside covered only with tarps and leaving it vulnerable to all types of weather. Meetings are held in varied locations, while equipment is hauled from place to place. The Brigade's first-ever Fire House will be built just west of Ventana Inn on property generously donated by Billy Post and his family, Big Sur pioneers. The BSVFB has a 75-year lease at the charge of $1 /year. The Fire House, itself, is going to be a 40 foot x 100 foot, two-story building that will take care of the Brigade's immediate and future needs.

AT&T golf tournament tickets on sale

TICKETS ARE now on sale for the 1992 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, to be played Jan. 27 through Feb. 2, 1992.

Brochures outlining ticket packages are now available at golf pro shops throughout Northern California or through the tournament office in Monterey (local: 408 649-1533, out of area: 1 800 541-9091).

The 1992 tournament will be held on world renowned Pebble Beach Golf Links, site of the 1992 U.S. Open, as well as Spyglass Hill and Poppy Hills golf courses. Paul Azinger will be on hand to defend his 1991 title. He will be joined by the top stars on the PGA Tour, paired with celebrity amateurs from the worlds of entertainment, sports and business.

Ticket prices have not been increased for the coming year. Daily tickets remain at $10 per day for practice rounds and $20 for tournament rounds. Season badges may be purchased for $60 before December 15 and $75 after that date.

Any-day ticket books containing 12 coupons are again being offered at $195 and Grounds and Grandstand badges at $90. The VIP Club Package is available at $900 per couple which includes lodging, tickets, daily transportation and other amenities. The popular Executive Booster Package, which allows businesses to bring up to 48 people to the tournament, is priced at $1,250.

Corporate Sponsorship packages are available for companies wishing to entertain clients in the Corporate Village complex adjacent to the 2nd fairway of Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Net proceeds from the tournament are distributed to over 150 nonprofit organizations. The 1991 AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am raised $1 million for charity. To date, over $11.5 million, has been disbursed by AT&T Pebble Beach Golf Charities, the giving arm of the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation which stages the tournament.

SAFETY AWARENESS ON THE JOB PAYS

Safety awareness on the job can help prevent unnecessary injuries and illnesses. The National Safety Council recommends that workers take time to prevent accidents by learning how to recognize unsafe practices and conditions. Workers should follow all safety procedures and get to know about tools used to promote safety, including emergency response procedures.

Factions set to square off over private golf membership plan

AT PRESS time both sides of the controversial Pebble Beach reservation policy issues were gearing up for a showdown at the state Coastal Commission.

The Pebble Beach Co. has proposed to sell private memberships, an idea that was initially approved by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors last summer.

But that action was appealed to the Coastal Commission, which agreed to hear the matter in Monterey so there would be ample opportunity for public comment.

Leading the opposition against the notion is 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who was the sole no vote when the issue was heard at the board of supervisors.

Strasser Kauffman has contended that the approved contract between the county and Pebble Beach Co. is not the correct way to do a business deal that could potentially privatize the public golf course.

Strasser Kauffman believes that the Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan would need to be amended in order for the use to change.

Pebble Beach Co. officials, however, maintain that public access will not diminish and that selling private memberships is necessary for the company to meet its financial obligations.

The commission is scheduled to hear the matter at 9 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 15, at the conference center in Monterey.

Correction

IT WAS incorrectly reported in the Oct. 3 edition of the Pine Cone that tickets for the U.S. Open, scheduled for June 15-21, cost $750. The actual season-ticket price is $175.

According to U.S. Open officials, season tickets entail a separate ticket for each of the three practice rounds and four championship rounds, plus possible playoffs. The ducat also entitles the user to one parking pass and a U.S. Open Magazine.

SABIAN FORD, a student in Steve Taylor's third-grade class at Carmel River School, checks out one of the "wikiups" constructed by students for a third-grade project examining the life and culture of Central Coast Indians. State Park Ranger C. M. Bancroft also demonstrated an ancient instrument that utilizes abalone shells and dried bones. Warren set his sights on Carmel school board

By DAVID LELAND

JAMIE WARREN says he is running for a four-year seat on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees out of conscience.

In other words, Warren wants to have a say in his two children's destiny.

"I've got 16 years of the Carmel Unified School District staring me in the face," says Warren, whose daughter Lindsay, 7, attends Tularcitos School, while son James, 2, is enrolled in preschool at Carmelo. "Being a parent connects me to the school system. I want to make sure my kids have some of the same opportunities that there were for the kids ahead of them."

In throwing his hat into the ring against incumbents Hilton Bialek, Patricia Condren and Gary Gray, Warren says his business acumen could play a critical part in shaping board policy.

"Right now there is nobody on the board with a business background," says Warren, vice president and general manager of The Lodge at Pebble Beach, who oversees 600 workers.

Warren says that, if elected, he will seek increased commitment from the business community in terms of funding and training.

Warren, 40, who took a Bachelor of Science degree in history and education from Jacksonville University in 1974, says that he maintains a large degree of respect for the current boardmembers.

"All three have done a good job; our district has been very fortunate," he says. "These people have served the board very, very well. I have no qualms."

However, Warren maintains that it is critical for the board to be composed of at least member who has young children in Carmel schools. Gray has a child at Carmel High School.

"Carmel has done a good job in addressing the challenges they have had," says Warren. "But the challenges they are facing now are considerably different."

Jamie Warren announces candidacy for Carmel School Board seat.

His platform is not an adversarial one.

"I just think it's time for some new people to share the responsibility," he says.

THE KITCHEN crew at Congregation Beth Israel spent hours preparing for The Fourth Annual Jewish Food Festival last Sunday. Their motto for the event was, "Have a Great Day and Remember—EAT."

Latkes and kugels draw crowds at annual Jewish Food Festival

By SUSAN BECK

FOR THOSE who craved potato pancakes (latkes) "to die for," the place to be last Sunday was the Fourth Annual Jewish Food Festival.

Latkes were the big seller this year at the festival held in Carmel Valley at Congregation Beth Israel.

Last year's festival brought together about 1,500 people from all around the peninsula, said Joyce Kurtz, festival coordinator, and this year there were even more.

She said that the event came about to bring the community together and offer a chance for anyone interested to learn more about the Jewish traditions and culture.

"We are grateful and delighted about the turnout. You always worry that people won't show up, but this year more people came and stayed longer. We had a children's area and the kids didn't want to leave," said Kurtz.

Along with potato pancakes there were blintzes, kugels, seltzers, egg creams, pastrami sandwiches, cabbage rolls, bagels, lox and cream cheese, and, of course, chicken soup with matzoh balls, to name a few fabulous foods to choose from.

And, there was a takeout booth if you didn't want to just hang around all afternoon visiting and trying a little of everything.

The special events of the day included a chance to learn Israeli dancing, tour the synagogue sanctuary, participate in the cheesecake and kugel contest, win door prizes and more.

Kurtz said that plans for next year's festival are already in the making in addition to developing a cookbook for anyone interested in trying their hand at cooking Jewish food.

So, for all those people who missed the once-a-year opportunity to enjoy great potato pancakes, here's Larry Solow's latke recipe.

POTATO LATKES

4 large potatoes (6 medium)
1/2 tsp. salt
1 small onion
1 tbsp. flour
2 eggs
dash pepper
1/8 tsp. baking powder

Grate potatoes with onion, by hand or blender. Drain excess water. Add eggs, flour, salt and pepper. Mix well. Fry in hot oil, turning when golden brown. Drain on paper towel before serving. Serve with applesauce, sugar, cinnamon or sour cream.

High school juniors, seniors eligible for $2,000 scholarship

STATE SUPERINTENDENT of Public Instruction Bill Honig announces an opportunity for juniors and seniors holding elective offices in California public or private high schools to receive a $2,000 scholarship and a trip to Washington, D.C.

The scholarship and trip are part of the United States Senate Youth Program, designed to honor students for their leadership, community involvement, and academic achievement. This program, established in 1962 by Senate Resolution 324 and funded through the William Randolph Hearst Foundation, provides scholarships for high school juniors or seniors from each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the Department of Defense Overseas Dependent Schools. The delegates will visit Washington, D.C., February 1-8, 1992, for an "insider's view" of the government.

Interested and eligible students are nominated by school principals who received application information through their district offices. Each high school, with the help of a local selection committee, identifies one candidate to represent the school. The school principal must submit the nominee's application to the California Department of Education, postmarked no later than Oct. 11.

The statewide screening of applicants will occur in October. Two delegates and two alternates for California will be selected by Superintendent Honig. Announcement of the winners will be made in December.

For more information regarding the U.S. Senate Youth Program, contact Ira Clark in the department's History-Social Science Unit at (916) 323-0959. Those seeking information regarding applications should contact their local high school principal.

Cultural council puts out call for arts benefactors

THE MONTEREY County Cultural Council called for nominations of the most distinguished patrons and benefactors of the arts in Monterey County.

At a meeting with arts organizations from throughout Monterey County, Executive Director David Cloutier asked representatives from the performing, literary and visual arts to nominate businesses, foundations and individuals who they feel should be recognized as exceptional benefactors of the arts.

The Monterey County Cultural Council (MCCC) will honor those selected from the field of nominees at their first annual Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts Award Night and Dinner to be held on Nov. 15 at the Inn at Spanish Bay.

The black-tie affair will be the culmination of a two-month search for the county's most supportive patrons of the arts, a search that began with Sept. 10 meeting. According to Cloutier, in inaugurating and presenting the awards, the MCCC "seeks to recognize those who provide outstanding and noteworthy support of the arts in Monterey County through their monetary contributions, inspiring leadership, or through endowments, capital improvements or development campaign assistance."

All arts organizations in Monterey County are encouraged to nominate any business, foundation or individual which/who met the above criteria during, or culminating in, the past year, 1990-1991.

From the pool of nominees, finalists will be selected by the MCCC and honored at the awards night in November. MCCC President John Totten explains, "through these awards, it is the hope of the Cultural Council to demonstrate the gratitude and appreciation of the entire community for philanthropic endeavors on behalf of the cultural arts. It also wishes, by public recognition of these honorees, to assist the arts organizations in maintaining and encouraging this life-giving support for the years to come."

For more information on the Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts Awards, including eligibility, the nomination procedure, or for more information on the Monterey County Cultural Council, please call: 424-3043.

Cookout time in Carmel

CARMEL RESIDENTS young and old came out in force for a chicken barbecue celebrating Carmel's 75th birthday at Sunset Center Oct. 5. The parking lot and the upper terrace at the center were packed as hundreds feasted on chicken, beans and salad, listened to music and speeches and swapped stories. Joining in the fun were (photos, clockwise from upper left): Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras sought to get a better vantage point for a photo by straddling two planter boxes; Mayor Jean Grace sat at the "head" table filled with "old-timers," including Marjory Lloyd, Virginia Stanton and Glenn and Marian Leidig; there seemed to be as many balloons as people at the barbecue; the mayor read a proclamation from the state Legislature from the steps of the terrace; Joe Sheedy (sax), and Zach Joseph (trumpet), members of Carmel High's Carmel Marching & Chowder Society Jazz Band entertained with Dixieland tunes (other members included Mike Leen, Keiko Tanaka, Luna Suh, James Findlay, and Kareena Shannon); and Mary Louise Schneeberger found shade under a colorful Japanese umbrella. The day's events, which included a photo exhibit, a showing of the Carmel Heritage video, and a session with the 2016 Committee, climaxed with a gala Diamond Dance at the Carmel Youth Center. Carmel was incorporated as a city 75 years ago Oct. 31.

DORIS DAY'S BEST FRIENDS

By Doris Day

The importance of being healthy

ROUTINE PHYSICAL exams are critical to our pets' health and well-being, particularly because they can't tell us how they feel. As part of your pet's annual (or semi-annual) visit, your vet will routinely check his general physical condition, including eyes, ears, nose, lungs and heart.

It's also important to check the feet to be sure that toenails are the proper length and that the pads of the feet are in good shape. If your pet has long, feathery hair, it may need to be clipped between the toes to prevent matting, and unless your pet is groomed regularly this is a good time to have this looked at. Without proper care the hair can form a hard lump that will be painful and cause your pet to limp, so be sure to check the feet.

Pay attention to your pet's stool. If there are changes in the color or consistency, it's time to alert your vet. My little Beagle, Ticker, had a very soft, pale yellow stool, excessive bowel movements, a ravenous appetite, and was thin as a rail—all clues that something was wrong. We learned through tests that she was not assimilating her food properly and it was going right through her with very little nutritional benefit. She is now taking a powdered enzyme supplement in her food and is slowly, slowly improving. To be aware of problems like this and to check for parasites, be sure to take a fresh stool sample in a glass jar or plastic baggie when your pet has his checkup.

Does your dog scoot around the floor or bite at his posterior? His anal glands may need to be cleaned.

If you've noticed any changes in your pet's habits or behavior, no matter how insignificant, talk it over with the doctor. An increased thirst, for instance, may be a sign of disease and not just the result of a warm day.

An older pet experiences normal age-related changes in vision and hearing, but he is also more susceptible to diseases such as cancer, arthritis and heat and kidney problems. These can often be treated if they're diagnosed early, so it's especially important to observe your pet for clues to his state of health. Physical exams are more thorough with an aging pet and may include the following:

—A complete blood count can help in the diagnosis of bacterial and viral infections, anemia and clotting problems.

—A urinalysis gives an indication of how the kidneys are functioning and also serves as an all-purpose screen for systemic diseases.

—An EKG can help your veterinarian assess your pet's heart and detect any irregular, slow or weak heartbeat.

—X-rays can help uncover changes such as enlargements or reductions in organ size, accumulation of fluid, presence of tumors, arthritic changes in joints and the presence of bladder stones.

—Consultation about a diet that meets your pet's changing nutritional needs also is an important part of any thorough checkup.

—In addition to the physical exam and appropriate lab tests, your pet's basic health care program should include vaccinations and annual dentistry, which I'll discuss next week.

Bye for now, see you then!

(Written in collaboration with Judy Ruby, Director, Doris Day Pet Foundation, Los Angeles).

Meals on wheels looking for volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are neededto deliver 280 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave," says Poland.

Poland said there are 25 routes, four of them in the Carmel area.

Because the agency uses volunteers, Poland often is called upon to drive routes himself.

One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually a sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to prepare the meals at the Meals on Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

If you would like to volunteer , contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Carmelized

OLDTIMERS, NEWTIMERS and in-and-outers were at Sunset Center last weekend to wish Carmel-By-The-Sea a happy 75th birthday. One hundred thirty oldtimers including Helen Wilson, Jean Draper, Oldtimer Chairman Glenn Leidig (Glenn claims the old-timer record — 80 years), Anita Dormody, John Campbell and Harriette Rouwntree held court on the patio at Sunset Center.

The in-and-outers have racked up a lot of years, but not consecutively. They included Cedric Rowntree who lived in and out of Carmel from 1925 to 1944. Former Carmel Pine Cone editor Marjory Lloyd technically is a newtimer (59 years), as is Zaida Murphy (56 years).

All the fol-de-rol about seniority lifted like a mist as over 1,000 people mingled in the Sunset Center parking lot turned sunny picnic ground. They sat at the long tables and talked, and talked and the numbers didn't matter anymore. It was as if they had been waiting a long time for the opportunity to get together.

Members of the Abalone Club served as volunteers and thanks to the hard work and dedication of 75th Anniversary Celebration Committee Chairs Lindsay Hanna, Marion and Glenn Leidig, Howard Skidmore, Toni Jepson, Fleece Dennis, Pat Sippel and Sharon Lawrence and their fellow committee members the event will go down as a milestone in the annals of Carmel history.

Nostalgia was certainly in the air. But without knowing it. the Committee had set the scene for a much-needed group therapy session for the town. Carmel is an elusive creature, difficult to define, and for all its quaintness, somewhat aloof. Newer residents discovered a sense of community in the historic photo exhibit. The Marjorie Evans Gallery at Sunset Center looked like the Metropolitan Museum as rows of people quietly moved from photo to photo, retracing the history of the village they love but know so little about. A crowd would gather whenever an older resident stopped to remember aloud.

The photograph of the band for the Dutch Market Fiesta prompted some to wonder if maybe Carmel was more fun in the old 'days. The town's founder J. Frank Devendorf, Sidney Yard, Bob Mitchell, someone named Hawky, Joe Stewart, Joseph Hand, Hansen the butcher and his dog Dottie, L.S. Slevin and Courtland Arne the barber, posed for the portrait, attired in pantaloons, crazy hats and wigs.

Hard to picture today's civic leaders and business people engaged in such whimsy.

Carmel hasn't had many community-wide gatherings. One woman remarked she has lived on the same street for over 20 years but had never really met one of her nearby neighbors until the Carmel birthday party. She was thrilled to have finally made the connection.

Thirty-year Carmel resident and Abalone Club member Jerry Holst was ashamed to say he didn't know the words to the Abalone Song, early Carmel's contribution to folk music. Perhaps a recitation of the traditional verses should be a pre-requisite for membership in the rejuvenated club.

The citizens' interest in the past was matched by their concern for the future of their town. The 2016 Visions for Carmel's future were pinned on the wall and attracted attention and comments. People were asked to vote for their favorite visions. Top vote getters included: An urban forest plan to assure the continuity of Carmel's canopy of trees, a parking shuttle system, the need to renew plans for a performing arts center at Sunset Center, the creation of a Post Office Plaza to promote community interaction, a farmer's market, an adopt a tree program and skateboard park at Rio Vista park.

They were outspoken and concise in their written comments about what they wanted to see in Carmel.

"Parking."

"An open air mall from Junipero to Monte Verde on Ocean Ave."

"Fun for high school kids."

"Children are our future, give them what they like, not what we want them to like."

"Let's Carmelize by welcoming new residents with informative programs."

But why wait until 2016 for these visions to become reality? What's wrong with right now? Let's hope the spirit of the 75th anniversary doesn't fade too quickly.

Carmel Quotes

"Glenn and I worked on the 50th anniversary for the Sunset School reunion and now this one. Sure, you can put us down for the 100th."

—Marian Leidig

PAT SIPPEL and Carmel Mayor Jean Grace took a short dessert break at the Diamond Dance. Pat was chairman of the event held at the Carmel Youth Center and remarked it was unfortunate the dance had to compete with the Fireman's Ball, scheduled the same night. (Chris Hulse photo).

JOYCE UNDERDOWN, Marie Wilson and Gus Underdown discussed the state of the economy, particularly in Carmel, at the Merchant's Fair held at Sunset Center. (Barbara March photo)

STEVE AND Barbara Brooks were light on their toes at the Diamond Dance. Barbara is a member of the Carmel-By-The Sea City Council. (Chris Hulse photo).

"Excuse me, do you know where is the beach?"

—Tourist on Junipero Street

"To me, Carmel is having a bowl of hot onion soup in the back corner of a country French restaurant on a foggy summer night."

—A newtimer

"I've never been to a picnic where I've been served!"

—Carmelite at the Sunset Center barbecue.

"Carmel is a friendly, home feeling."

—Maxine Jennings

"We have the mountains, valleys, oceans; we're spoiled rotten. We've taken it for granted."

—Phil Coniglio

"All our grass roots politics keep it festive."

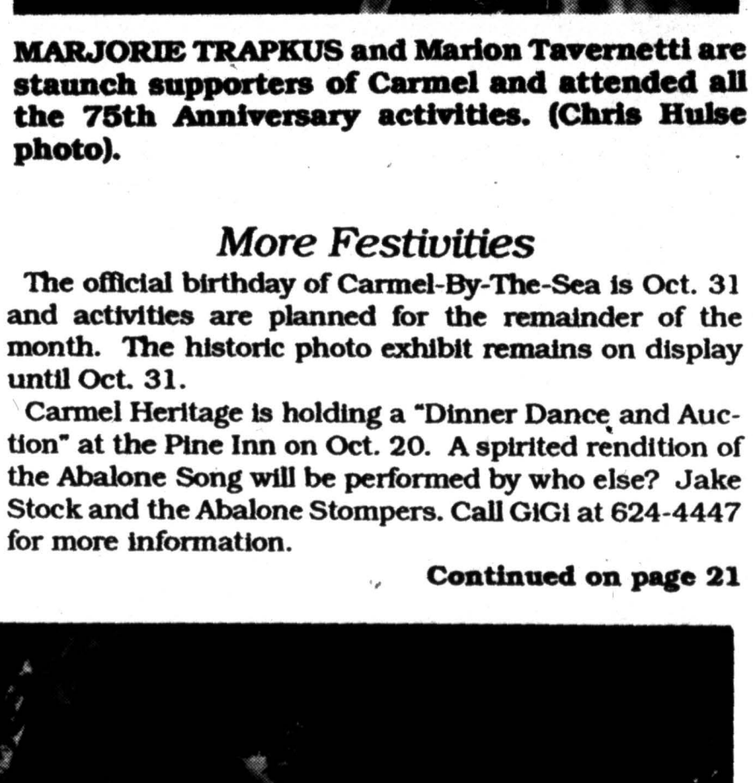
—Star Coniglio

"Carmel has a sense of continuity for new residents. They can meet people who have lived here all their lives. People leave, but they come back. We can tell how many newcomers there are by the activity at the post office. The post office provides a continuity, a social hub."

—Mayor Jean Grace

"Sometimes I joke, 'Why don't we move to Carmel Valley?' For the price of our house here in town we could have a pool, tennis court, yard and sunshine. But we could never leave Carmel. We love it."

—Lindsay Hanna



MARJORIE TRAPKUS and Marion Tavernetti are staunch supporters of Carmel and attended all the 75th Anniversary activities. (Chris Hulse photo).

More Festivities

The official birthday of Carmel-By-The-Sea is Oct. 31 and activities are planned for the remainder of the month. The historic photo exhibit remains on display until Oct. 31.

Carmel Heritage is holding a "Dinner Dance and Auction" at the Pine Inn on Oct. 20. A spirited rendition of the Abalone Song will be performed by who else? Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers. Call GiGi at 624-4447 for more information.

ABALONE CLUB members were everywhere throughout the weekend's festivities. Members Gloria Costa and Elaine Martinez were all a-glitter at the Diamond Dance. (Chris Hulse photo).

Plan to take a walking tour of the historic trees of Carmel. Howard Skidmore of Friends of the Forest has painstakingly put together a walk-about that surveys stately members of Carmel's urban forest.

As part of the comprehensive survey of homes within the one square mile of the city, Carmel Heritage has published a self-guided walking tour of some of the town's most significant dwellings.

For more information on these special programs call Carmel-By-The-Sea City Hall at 624-2781.

Meanwhile...

A woman dressed in a gold lame skirt, gold shoes, a red sweater and with bright red hair was seen walking down Junipero near Anton & Michel. A new bohemian?

Bird of Paradise Catering, Central 159 and Michael's Catering served delectable hors d'oeuvres at the Friends of La Mirada "Charter Members Reception." Ever try to balance a grape on a cracker while making polite conversation and drinking a glass of wine? Jon Kasky of Bird of Paradise got rave reviews for his neatly packaged salmon quesadillas. Michael's polenta with chicken pesto required a fork but was well worth the effort. Central 159's David Beckwith kept them coming back for more at the dessert and capuccino table.

Can't decide? Will it be Chartwell's "Night of the Round Tables" or "A Passage Through Time" with the Natividad Medical Foundation? Both are for a good cause, promise to be spectacular and are scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 26.

To add to the confusion enter the Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies and their "Grand Hotel - An International Cabaret Evening," Nov. 2 at the Monterey Marriott. The MIIS gala is only held once every two years, so if you miss this one, you'll have to wait.

If you decide to go global and attend the MIIS party you'll meet the consul generals from at least 17 countries. The dress is black tie or international attire. Sounds intriguing. For more information call 647-4105.

OR, pass on all the above and go to the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History Sunday and hear biology teacher Walter Sakai speak at the Annual Meeting. Mr. Sakai is studying the Monarch Butterfly in California and will describe the technique he has used to tag 60,000 butterflies. That really sounds intriguing. Time - 2:30 p.m., refreshments will be served.

DAN HARNISH and Maxine Jennings both love Carmel for itswarmth and friendly people. (Chris Hulse photo).

Don't forget the popular Santa Catalina "Wine Auction," on Saturday at 4:30. Now in its 10th year, the auction will feature 30 California wineries, a catered buffet and silent and live auctions. For information call Santa Catalina School at 655-9310.

Also this weekend, Betty White will sign copies of her new book, Leading Lady; Dinah's Story, at the Carmel Book Emporium in the Crossroads, Saturday, Oct. 12. from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Proceeds benefit the Monterey County SPCA.

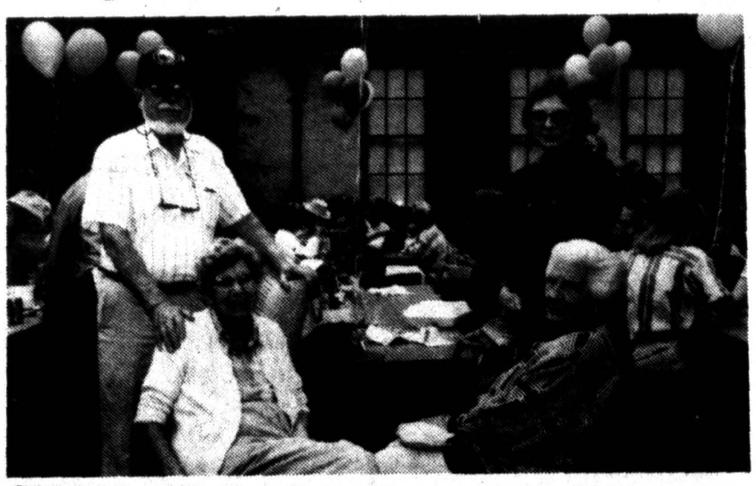
ED HABER and Lawson Little modeled new yellow shirts designed for the Sheriff's Emergency Assistance Team at the Sheriff's Advisory Council's Annual Barbecue. Haber, the president and driving force of the Council, opened his home for members and their families. The mission of the Council is to support law enforcement in our area "morally and financially." Members have contributed over $125,000 over the past few years to buy equipment for the Sheriff's Department, not available through the County budget process. (Chris Hulse photo).

MARIAN LEIDIG (left) handed out small abalone shells to people attending the 75th Anniversary Barbecue saying, "They're like worry beads. Put it in your pocket and when something concerns you, just rub it." Muriel and Gordon Miller, oldtimer Walnut Creek residents who are now newtime Carmelites, chose their shells. (Chris Hulse photo).



CEDRIC AND Harriette Rowntree (left) and Pam Dormody Smith (standing) and her mother Anita Dormody attended the 75th Anniversary Barbecue. Anita has lived in Carmel for 62 years. (Chris Hulse photo).

Don't be dead certain you're too young to have a heart attack.

Last year 105,000 Americans under age 65 died of heart attacks. In fact, 45 percent of all heart attacks happen to people younger than 65. If you're old enough to be concerned about heart disease, be wise enough to take the steps recommended by the American Heart Association to reduce your risk. Don't smoke. Reduce the fat and cholesterol in your diet. And control high blood pressure. Act now. Because it's never too early to start taking care of yourself.

Foxtails a real danger to household pets

A LIFE-THREATENING menace to your best friend is lurking in the tall grasses throughout Monterey County. Unfortunately, people may not be aware of this danger until it has caused pain and suffering and sometimes even the death of a pet.

The foxtail, artfully designed by nature to disperse itself by sticking and burrowing, can harm your dog while he frolicks in tall grass. The barbed end burrows into ears, between foot pads, lodges itself behind the "third eyelid" and can actually migrate through the skin.

Any dog or cat who roams where tall grasses grow should be examined daily. Examine eyes, ears, feet, and run a comb or brush through the coat. Make it a daily ritual, at bedtime or at dinnertime.

If your pet displays any of these symptoms, take him or her to your veterinarian immediately:

- Pawing at the ears and shaking the head
- Rubbing and squinting the eyes
- Sneezing repeatedly and violently
- Constant licking of particular spots
- Discharge in the eyes
- Holding head to one side

A SILENT KILLER

No single substance causes more accidental home poisonings than carbon monoxide. The National Safety Council suggests having your furnace and chimney checked each year. The hot water heater and any other gas appliances also should be inspected to insure against leaking fumes. Also, never run gasoline or fuel-powered motors inside the house: they can cause carbon monoxide build-up.

Knowledge of CPR techniques could save a life

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver.

Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921 .

Food, wine masters set at Highlands Inn

THE ANNUAL Masters of Food and Wine will again bring together chefs and winemakers from Germany, Italy, France and the United States as it returns for the sixth year. The dates are Feb. 25 - March 1, 1992 at Highlands Inn, Carmel, announced vice president and general manager, Dennis R. Mills.

Co-sponsored by Lufthansa German Airlines since its inception in 1987, the Masters of Food and Wine salutes great cuisine and wine as a common international language, each year drawing an exclusive roster of chefs and winemakers who have included Julia Child, Paul Bocuse, Marcella Hazan, Wolfgang Puck, Jeremiah Tower and Alain Ducasse.

The tradition continues as French chef, cookbook author and instructor Roger Verge joins with Daniel Boulud of New York City's Le Cirque, and master chefs Guiliano Bugialli of Italy; Johann Lafer of Le Val d' Or, Germany; Jasper White of Boston's Jasper's Restaurant; and Brian Whitmer of award-winning Pacific's Edge at Highlands Inn.

The teaming of Verge and Boulud marks the first time that teacher and former student have cooked together since 1976. Verge is creator of "Cuisine du Soleil" or cuisine of the sun, epitomized at Le Moulin de Mougins restaurant and L'Amandier, both in Mougins, France, in his cookbook Cuisine of the Sun published by Macmillan and through his professional training programs.

Boulud, who served as first cook then chef de partie at Le Moulin de Mougins from 1974 to 1976, joined Le Cirque as executive chef in 1986. Within one year, the restaurant was awarded four stars by The New York Times and New York Newsday. In 1988 and 1990, Le Cirque was chosen as the best restaurant in the United States by Gault Millau, and by "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" each year since 1989.

Working closely with the famed chefs will be celebrated winemakers from Germany, France, Italy and California including Napa Valley's Mondavi Winery and Heitz Cellars; Helmut Kranich of Langwerth von Simmern, Germany; Robert Drouhin of Joseph Drouhin, France; and Piero Antinori of Marchesi Piazza Degli Antinori in Italy.

As the Masters enters its sixth year, Highlands Inn also celebrates its 75th anniversary. The four-star resort was recognized in August 1991 with The Wine Spectator's Grand Award. This is the publication's highest honor, awarded to only 84 restaurants worldwide since the program's inception in 1981. Mills, Highlands Inn vice president and general manager, observes that "today's sophisticated diner has come to expect an exceptional fine dining experience. The Grand Award affirms our commitment to excellence in our food and wine program, a commitment experienced each day by our guests and epitomized by the Masters of Food and Wine."

Complementing this philosophy is a Masters of Food and Wine program that will offer participants diverse culinary programs ranging from luncheons and dinners jointly planned by chefs and winemakers to cooking demonstrations by Verge, Bugialli and White. Outside the resort, a tour and luncheon at Talbott Winery as well as the tour, "Wild Mushrooms of Big Sur," have been scheduled.

Participating chefs confirmed to date for the sixth annual Masters of Food and wine are: Daniel Boulud; Guiliano Bugialli; Patrick Clark of Bice's Restaurant in Los Angeles; Johann Lafer; Willi Woidera of Lufthansa German Airlines in Frankfurt; San Francisco's Gerhard Michler of Creative International Pastries and Nancy Oakes of L'Avenue; Patina's Joachim Splichal of Los Angeles; Charlie Trotter of Charlie Trotter's in Chicago; Roger Verge; Jasper White; Brian Whitmer of Pacific's Edge at Highlands Inn and Roy Yamaguchi of Roy's Restaurant in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Winemakers and winery principals confirmed to date are: Italy's Piero Antinori; Bryan Babcock of Babcock Winery in San Luis Obispo; from France Mireille Guilano of Clicquot, Bruno Prats of Domaine Prats and Robert Drouhin; from Napa Ed Sbragia of Beringer Vineyard, Dan and Margaret Duckhorn of Duckhorn Vineyards, Joseph Heitz of Heitz Cellars, Mondavi Winery, Jeff Patterson of Mt. Eden Vineyards and Ed Selyem and Burt Williams of Williams and Selyem Winery; Germany's Helmut Kranich of Langwerth von Simmern and Dr. Manfred Prum of Weingut Prum.

Special guests scheduled to date are: Dr. Ernesto Illy of Illy Caffe, Italy, sommelier Daniel Johnnes of New York City's Restaurant Montrachet and mushroom expert Jack Czarnecki of Joe's Restaurant in Reading, Pennsylvania.

As official co-sponsor of the event, Lufthansa German Airlines will again transport the international chefs and winemakers and cargo of specially selected wines to the United States.

Events during the Masters of Food and Wine are individually priced from $40 to $150.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Many older people regularly use more than one prescription, sometimes at the direction of different doctors, and some also take over-the-counter nonprescription remedies. But certain combinations of medications can be harmful. That's one reason the New York State Medical Society has launched an educational program called Medication Safety Project. To avoid harmful drug interactions, make sure your doctors know all of the medications you take, including any pills, tablets, eyedrops, suppositories and other products you buy without a prescription. Also, as a person ages, the body's ability to handle some medications may change. If any medication produces side effects, tell your doctor promptly.

When a three-year-old boy broke an arm in a fall, a doctor told his parents to buy him a violin for therapy. Joseph Fuchs still plays, 88 years later, and is acknowledged by other concert violinists as their model—"you can play differently but you can't play better," says Nathan Milstein. At 91, Fuchs performs in concerts, teaches at the Julliard School of Music—and practices daily.

Performance Carmel offers compelling season

By JOHN DETRO

BUILT AND propelled by visionary zeal, Sunset Center's first contemporary arts performance series stands ready for public consideration today.

The offerings called Performance Carmel — Kronos Quartet, composer Philip Glass, Spaulding Gray, others of like currency — were unveiled by City Cultural Director Brian Donoghue at a press conference.

"I am delighted to add something new to the community," Donoghue said with a manner both informal and passionate. "Culture cannot be insular. We cannot look back in 50 years and see a black hole. So we have this vision, this responsibility — and it's an extremely important thing we're attempting. Any life will be different after seeing Performance Carmel."

Since Carmel brought him from Boston, the experienced producer and booker added, Donoghue has conducted "a year of assessment. Carmel is already blessed with classical music in many forms. . .Now the vision means effecting change right here and throughout the Central Coast. The series was reviewed and supported by the City Cultural Commission."

And: "It's our responsibility to open minds. . .shake it up quite a bit. . .get the juices flowing. Sunset Center is so committed to the need for and importance of this series, as well as the excellence of these artists, that we are offering tickets at a particularly low price to make these programs accessible to a wide rance of audiences."

Handsome brochures cite three series subscription plans plus notable incentives. Single tickets carry prices of $11 and $13.50. Call 624-3996 for information packets and/or reservations. Performance Carmel includes these evening shows:

—Kronos Quartet on Saturday, Nov. 2. This widely-praised string unit draws its repertoire from such diverse sources as Bartok, Webern, Ives, John Cage and the jazz masters Mingus, Monk, Bill Evans. "We got a grant from California Arts Council," Donoghue said during the Monday afternoon media session at The General Store, "to help assure their participation here. The Sunset Theater performance will feature seven works written for Kronos."

—Saturday, Nov. 23. An Evening with Philip Glass. More than a solo piano recital. This program also will offer the chance to hear Glass talking about his heady, often euphoric music.

—Saturday, Feb. 1, 1992. Edlos — The Bad Boys of A Capella. "An example of Performance Carmel's belief that innovation sometimes is pure fun," Donoghue said. Based in San Francisco, the four classically trained male vocalists perform arrangements of hit tunes from 1930s-1980s.

—Saturday, March 7. Pilobolus. Known round the world, the dance company inspired Le Monde to remark: ". . .zany as the Marx brothers, as clever as Houdini, this sextet of adept acrobats converts bodies into interlocking and interchangeable parts, erecting sculptures on stage. . . ."

—Saturday, April 4. Spaulding Gray presenting Monster in a Box. The autobiographical monologue considers the difficulties completing a novel. Performed throughout this country and Europe, this theater piece mixes confession, irony, straight observation, sermon, "Twain-like sense of the absurd."

—Saturday, April 25. Tandy Beal & Company. Based in Santa Cruz, the globe-trotting troupe spans the boundaries of theater and dance. Choreographer Tandy always makes room for humor, music, strong storytelling.

—Saturday, May 30. Margie Gillis. The "spectacular solo dancer" hails from Montreal. "For sheer theatricality, intensity and originality she is second to none," the press kit said.

"All of these artists," Donoghue said, "have three things in common. They're World Class, known as groundbreakers who've been trained in the classics — and they're established, not off the wall or faddish. The business community's getting more excited (about possibilities of series co-sponsorships), and we're discovering a lot of closet contemporary audience members. This isn't an easy fight. Change comes slowly. . .but we have a mission that's worthwhile. And this approach doesn't exist anywhere else on the Monterey Peninsula."

ARTS & LEISURE

A veritable downpour

Music Corner

By Nathalie Plotkin

AFTER TWO months of a musical aridity to match our weather, Wednesday, Oct. 2, began a veritable downpour of concert series openings. The Carmel Music Society broke this particular drought by scheduling the noted American pianist Grant Johannesen to lead off its 65th Anniversary season.

Johannesen, who, in the course of his performance sadly gave off intimations of coming to the end of a distinguished career, made his debut in 1944 and has made a reputation for his interpretation of French music. This fame has been justly acquired, as was demonstrated during the second half of a widely diversified program.

Two Impromptus by Faure were pianistic and interpretive gems. The tonal pastel palette he employed had vibrancy and fine colorations. The rippling frills and arpeggios were smoothly negotiated. The artist sounded very comfortable in this atmosphere, making the subtlety and humor of the music very apparent and enjoyable.

An arrangement of music from Ravel's "L'enfant et les sortileges" by Gil Marchex was played with a fine sense of style and a strong appreciation of its jazzy impish charm. His touch was assured and flexible and he again seemed far more at ease in this music.

These selections were followed by a finely drawn, restrained reading of the Prokofiev "Sonata no. 7" op. 83. The second of the three so-called "War" sonatas, composed between 1940-44, it reflects the tensions of the times of the battle for Stalingrad.

For the most part, Johannesen emphasized the introspective aspects of the music, eschewing the more usually accepted percussive, rhythmically driven conception of the work. The desolate mood of the second movement's waltz theme with its haunting character was understated, tending toward poetry rather than tragedy and the thunderous and dynamic impetus of the third movement was treated with dignity rather than passion right up to the last few pages, when even Johannesen had to succumb to its irresistible force and yield himself to its demand for a full out climactic resolution.

The evening began with a performance of the Beethoven "Sonata no. 18 in E Flat Major" op. 31, no. 3. This is an unusual work in that none of its four movements is slow. After a rather careful, inhibited and sometimes inaccurate traversal of the first movement, the Scherzo was too rapidly paced and yet managed to sound heavy handed.

The Menuet, on the other hand, was well done, singing with a good legato line and the chords in the Trio were well voiced and balanced. There was understanding and grace in the playing. The Presto began precariously, but ultimately settled into a weightily footed rhythmic saltarello which is hardly the ideal manner of interpretation for this music.

Strangely enough, the most interesting music on the program was the Brahms "Sonata no. 2 in F Sharp Minor" op. 2. Actually written as his first piano sonata when he was 19, it is a fascinating specimen of its genre. Johannesen took the big pianistic approach to the dramatic flourishes and rhapsodic improvisations of the first movement. Oddly enough, one could identify intimations of Liszt (past) and Rachmaninoff (future) in the music.

A quietly lyrical Andante contrasted delicacy and drama in the ruminative and somewhat formless movement. The Scherzo here was gently drawn and again the Trio was especially pleasing. The Finale also rambled, often sounding awkwardly put together, though through no fault of the performer who was able to handle most of the stringent technical demands that Brahms, a formidable virtuoso pianist himself, didn't hesitate to incorporate into the sonata.

The encores were the Chopin "Mazurka no. 13 A Minor" and Poulenc's "Contentment of Self." The next concert of this series features the Beauz Arts Trio on Tuesday evening, Oct. 15.

Borodin Trio will perform at Carmel's Sunset Theater

THE BORODIN TRIO will make music Thursday, Oct. 10 at the Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel. The 8 p.m. concert is a presentation of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

The trio is composed of Rotislav Dubinsky, violin; Luba Edlina, piano; and Yuli Turovsky, cello. The trio will play Schumann's Piano Trio in F-Major, Opus 80 ; Brahms' Trio in C-minor, Opus 101, and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 1 in D-minor, Opus 49.

Prior to emigrating from the Soviet Union to the United States in 1976, when the Borodin Trio was formed, these three musicians had already achieved considerable distinction in the world of music.

In the Soviet Union, Dubinsky and Edlina had been members of the Borodin Quartet. Dubinsky became a chamber music coach and prepared groups for international competition. Edlina recorded virtually the entire repertoire for piano and strings while she was with the Borodin Quartet. Dubinsky is the author of Stormy Applause, which relates his experiences as a musician in the Soviet Union.

The Borodin Trio is the recipient of a rich musical tradition. In his book, Music for All of Us, Leopold Stokowski refers to Alexander Borodin, for whom the trio is named, as one of a number of famous composers who are responsible for the fact that "Slavic music has contributed richly to the color, imaginative intensity, rhythm, and impulsive expression of European culture."

Tickets at the door are $14 and for those under 21 only $5.

She is a graduate of Vassar and received her Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley. She has taught philosophy at MPC since 1985 and is a member of the Gentrain teaching staff.

On Friday, Nov. 15, Dr. Grant Voth, a Gentrain instructor will speak on, "Alternative Shakespeares: New Approaches."

The final lecture will be on Wednesday, Dec. 11 Dr. Phyllis Peet, MPC's Women's Programs Coordinator and instructor, will talk about, "Quilts: a Feminist Perspective."

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home—whether it be for six months or the whole year - while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home. Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

A Fall Classic

STAGE MAGIC Productions' "Fall Classic" this Sunday doesn't have anything to do with baseball, but it does have a lot to do with an American pastime.

Their "Holman Ranch Country-Bluegrass Fall Classic," set for Sunday, Oct. 13, will feature that unique American music form, bluegrass, and plenty of it. The afternoon highlights four country/bluegrass bands in an open-air setting at the bucolic Holman Ranch. There will be continuous music from 1 to 6 p.m., with beer, wine and soft drinks available on site, a grassy lakeside area that was the site of July's "Open Hearts" benefit concert for John Prejean.

The event, which benefits local charities, will feature Billy Ingram & the Monterey County Honky Tonk All-Stars, the Larry Hosford Band, Homefire, and The Surf City Boys.

The bands are comprised of some of the top bluegrass talent in the area, in fact fiddle player Joe Weed and pedal steel player Mark McCornack have national reputations; Weed has recorded with numerous recording artists and McCornack recently appeared with Laurie Lewis and Grant Street at the Strawberry Music Festival.

Charities that will benefit include the Carmel Unified School District music programs, The Jamesburg School, The Carmel Valley Fire District, and the Cachagua Fire District & Community Park.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for children 14 and under and free for kids 7 and under and are available at The Running Iron in the valley, Carmel Music Company in Carmel and Winchester Western Wear in Salinas, or by calling Clem Savoldi at 659-4047, John Macy at 659-2130, or Marj Ingram at 659-4204.

MORE UPCOMING events with a musical bent on the Monterey Peninsula and outlying areas:

• Marley's Ghost will be playing a benefit for public radio station KAZU, 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11 at Monterey Peninsula College's Music Hall. Tickets are $5 in advance, $7 at the door. Marley's Ghost plays a unique and rich blend of reggae, bluegrass, folk and country and are known for their three and four-part harmony. More next week. Tickets are at 375-7275 or 659-3752.

• At Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row: Do you recall that I've been touting Roy Rogers at Doc's for the past few weeks now, well get it out of your head, he's not appearing there. Seems the booker plumb forgot to inform me that Roy had cancelled. But if you'd like to drive up to Santa Cruz (and I know you do), he'll be appearing at The Catalyst (Roy Rogers that is, not the booker), on Oct. 12. So sorry. Onward: Local bands playing at Doc's in the next week include The Young Presidents Oct. 10; The Cubes, Oct. 11-12; Rock 'n' Roll Rodeo Oct. 13; hot Latin band Tocara drops by Oct. 14; Roadside Attraction buzzes in Oct. 15 and Lovers & Strangers play Oct. 17. Look for jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson on Wednesday, Oct. 16. Ferguson is apparently bringing in a nine-piece band, which is a small band for him, he's usually accompanied by a killer Big Band, but don't expect these nine to be slouches, however. Ferguson always manages to attract some of the best talent around.

Others coming up in October include Santa Cruz Steel Oct. 22; Lloyd Jones Struggle, an excellent blues band from the Pacific Northwest, on Oct. 27; Jack Mack and the Heart Attack Oct. 28; Manly Moondog and the Three Cool Cats (Oct. 20). The latter band, described as "Tower of Power meets Was Not Was," features Woody Harrelson, the simple-minded barkeep from TV's Cheers, on lead vocals.

DOES THIS face have character or what? Larry Hosford plays the "Fall Classic" Sunday, Oct. 13 at Holman Ranch. (Will Abbott photo.)

• Jonah and the Whale Watchers play the Monterey Brewing Company every Wednesday; if you like roots reggae, this is the place to be every Wednesday night, with Mikey Dread and crew. Call 375-3634 for info.

• Upcoming shows at The Catalyst in Santa Cruz include: Cardiff Reefers Oct. 10; Dr. John Oct. 11; Roy Rogers and the Delta Rhythm Kings Oct. 12; The Beat Farmers Oct. 18; Phish Oct. 19; Human Race Oct. 24; The Untouchables Oct. 25; Pele Juju Oct. 26. Weekend shows start at 9:30 p.m. and weekday shows at 9. Info for Catalyst shows can be had by calling 423-1336.

• The Redwood Amphitheater at Great America continues to bring in some big names, the latest being a concert featuring Warrant, Trixter, and

I STAND corrected, which is a whole lot better than standing uncorrected: a couple of weeks ago I mentioned that the Pacific Jazz Series (which has brought in the likes of Ottmar Liebert and Larry Carlton), was "put on" by Monarch Entertainment.

I recently got a call from Sandy Shore, program director at Radio Pacific (101.7), who politely informed me that the series is a co-sponsorship with Monarch and Radio Pacific. Whatever the situation, keep it up.

She also enlightened me on another point: New Adult Contemporary has not supplanted Adult Contemporary; NAC is an updated, modernized version of AC, which still exists (KWAV for one is still stuck in AC), and it's also known as Adult Alternative and Progressive Adult Contemporary. Just don't ask me to define it. Just listen to the new Radio Pacific and you'll get the idea.

THE SEASON is about at an end for the excellent Paul Masson Summer Series 1991.Topping the season are: Yellowjackets, Oct. 10; and Pointer Sisters, Oct. 11-13.

What Do They Say When YOU Leave The Room? By Brigid McGrath Massie, MSW, MBA, with John Waters. Eudemonia Publications, PO Box 373, Salinas 93902. 208-page paperbound. $10.95.

•

CERTAIN COLLEGE offerings carry a time-tested label — "gut courses." They're more or less a free ride, centering on material that can be dealt with feelingwise, viscerally, without cracking books.

Well and good. At some point, however, if one wishes more than mediocre performance in the relatively real world, the focus must shift from sheer instinct to technique. Sane, trustworthy, solid technique.

The entire tone of this easy-to-read book says professional trainer and speaker Brigid McGrath Massie deserves trust. Not for her the flossy glossy theories on why we humans do what we do. Brigid digs down into her substantial background and puts forth scores of very practical tips that will, if interiorized through attention and practice, sharpen awareness and leadership skills. (In years past, I've been an education lobbyist on Capitol Hill and special assistant for the president of an East Coast corporation — her principles reflect the best information available via expensive New York seminars and structured industrial problem-solving sessions.)

The learning that's proffered herein will benefit not just commercial efforts. Deeper, clearer communication can help family and social relationships too — as well as one's self-image. Brigid starts with the basics and inserts examples where they're needed. And she doesn't mince words: "People who meet each other at work and hate the boss together, or unite against the boredom of their jobs, don't have enough of a foundation on which to build a friendship. They're like drunks or cokeheads who have only their addiction in common."

There'll be no boredom here as she focuses her sharp eye on a rich variety of matters: Determining your personal effectiveness quotient, getting and giving constructive feedback, identifying what works and doing more of it, the secrets of being selected, reaching out to help yourself, creating/maintaining effective satisfying relationships, stress management strategies that really work, time use, everyday leadership skills.

An excellent example of Brigid McGrath Massie's wisdom: "You don't have to. . .develop a stand-up comedy routine to become a memorable conversationalist. Just take the time to develop a strong vocabulary and make sure your frame of reference is interesting and current. Leave out the four-letter words and folksy colloqialisms. . .Try to take on the lexicon of your profession. Listen to your boss and the higher-ups. Listen to your customers. Take notes if you have to. This is a very effective way to package yourself as someone who belongs in a corner office."

She can be quite funny too: "But just standing out isn't enough. After all, a large forearm tattoo of a red skull and crossbones surrounded by the inscription, 'Born to Eat Cheese Dip,' would do the job. . . ." And incisive: "Dealing with what people say when you leave the room starts with controlling what you say to yourself. . . ."

Neither cold nor pompous, this book seems destined to make friends wherever it goes — and to help those friends achieve healthy goals.

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

The death of cool

THE COOTS of Lake El Estero display themselves daily as handsome and competent birds. So I shan't call San Francisco columnist Herb Caen an old coot.

Herb has been very entertaining for a very long time. Somewhere along the way, he must've had a run-in with the late Miles Davis. Caen's recent comments about Miles were, in a word, obscene. Caen alleged that Miles "took the joy out of the trumpet, turning that glorious instrument, so full of life and color, into something as pinched and unfriendly as he was." And then the aesthetic from which this pronouncement flowed: "Dizzy yes, Miles occasionally, Bunny Berigan forever."

One shouldn't whip half-deaf mules when they don't hear the wakeup whistle. One simply wishes that Caen could grasp the deep, burnished, tragic beauty within the Sketches of Spain and Tutu albums. One wishes that he'd remember the Davis groups with Philly Joe, Trane, Red Garland, Cannonball, Jimmy Cobb, et al — capable of such heart-bursting beauty that they captivated an entire generation of jazz musicians. No joy? The accusation's stupid on its face.

In his odd and feisty way, Miles might have enjoyed Herb's attack. It showed that the Davis manipulation of images and public energies still could inspire white guy wrath. Miles played the "bad black" wonderfully well: he was curt and foulmouthed and saucy with the press. And he laughed, as we say, all the way to the bank.

Before the calculated imagery of Madonna and George Bush (both cynical to the max) there was Miles. If he showed up somewhere in a funky '40s doublebreasted suit, hipsters and wannabes worldwide went hunting the exact same rags. San Francisco columnist Bill Mandel wrote that he wasn't even a jazz buff, then added: ". . .Miles was coolness incarnate. . .One whisker from his morning shave would have fueled our cool for a week." The truly hip poet and critic Amiri Baraka said the same sort of thing while praising Miles over National Public Radio last week.

Miles had something else too: the restlessness of lovers. His heart belonged to the music, and he knew that artists must grow/change or die. It's no mistake that he personally inspired so many major movements: cool school, the return to bluesy roots, modal jazz, those free-form wanders, fusion. Like him or not, the man stayed on his art form's edge and therefore found the future. Manipulations by Madonna and Bush serve themselves only; Miles followed his Muse wherever that demanding spirit went.

Can I say anything new about the regularly amazing fellow named Miles Davis? Perhaps this qualifies: when he played the magician and musical futurist, Miles demonstrated great executive ability. Every time he got up above the general throng and rode that wave, he was exercising the same rare skill that served Ben Franklin, Eli Whitney, Henry Ford, Leland Stanford, Howard Hughes. The Davis success story was so completely American that maybe he himself was surprised by its implications. One black man became a millionaire by playing jazz according to his own tough rules. Could anything be more improbable? In your face, Herb Caen.

Miles was a teacher who knew that paradox functions as the instructor's great tool (it opens minds). He swore he disliked white writers, but respected the late Ralph Gleason well enough to say in print: "I read him. He understands me."

In the days Coltrane and Cannonball worked for Davis, the leader set those two giants against one another unmercifully. After John's death, Miles would fight back tears as he chatted about Trane.

Miles often was accused of disrespecting his audiences. And yet, after he broke both legs in a 1972 car crash, I saw him show up and play a concert with hip-to-ankle casts propped up on chairs. He certainly didn't need the money. . . .

Well, enough. The man's music speaks for itself. And that music will do so long after the bilious Miles-haters have bitten the dust.

•

THE DAVIS legacy was apparent during brilliant pianist John Donaldson's latest gig in Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz. His sextet was assembled along Miles-type guidelines — tasteful and experienced players plus the huge energy of Young Turks.

"Yeh," John allowed in his London accent, "I guess I made those phone calls with The Davis Method more or less consciously at work."

I'd never heard tenorman Hafez Modir, who teaches World Music at San Jose State University. His emotional range was stunning — from the wispy introspection of Lester Young to get-down, honking Party Blues (think Illinois Jacquet with the '50s Jazz at the Philharmonic troupes). Joining him in the front line: Pacific Grove's John Cortes (alto, bery, soprano) and guitarist Tim Volpicella. When Hafez and Cortes ran unison bop or ballad lines, Tim often planted overtones that sent chills up one's spine.

The rhythm section: Donaldson, bassist John Shifflet, Jason Lewis on drums. Shifflet looked like a blond young stock analyst, but once tunes kicked off he was a fiery spirit. He provided a thick and gritty groove — and those shouts helped push an imaginative crew to even higher places. The evening was, in a word, magical.

One Donaldson original — Folk Song — was of such intrinsic beauty and simple construction that it inspired band members and audience alike. The tenor and alto echoed Coltrane without quoting him exactly: Trane's spiritual values packed the venue, swung joyfully, made both horns fairly dance. The tune could've continued for an hour, so involved were all listeners. (And it brought home a major point. Just as there's no free verse, there's really no free jazz. There's cohesion and purpose and love, or there isn't. The Jazz Spirit can't be fooled and, ultimately, neither can aware fans.)

The two sets gave that goodly crowd a rare shot of what this music's all about. I trust that the same unit will pursue other jobs. It's simply too good for a fast fade.

HIDDEN VALLEY Music Seminars presents a world premiere on Friday night (10/11) — the jazz ballet by composer and pianist Charles Loos. It's No Wall, No War and it was commissioned by Hidden Valley after that Berlin Wall fell. Tickets will be available when the box office opens at 7:30, with the performance starting half an hour later ($12.50 per adult and $8 student rate).

Choreographer for the occasion: Fran Spector. Dancers come from San Francisco's Chamber Dance Company. Joining Loos in the band will be Ali Ryerson (flute), Andy Connell (clarinet), Bryan McConnell (acoustic bass), Pat Tregenza (drums). Richard Armbrust produces jazz portions of the Fridays at 8:00 Series.

Additional performances have been scheduled at 8 p.m. Saturday night (10/12) and 2:30 p.m. Sunday (10/13). Info: 659-3115.

JAZZ BROADCASTER Jim Bourne of KAZU Radio (90.3FM) starts his three-hour Sunday night show at nine o'clock. He has decided that October will be Big Band Month.

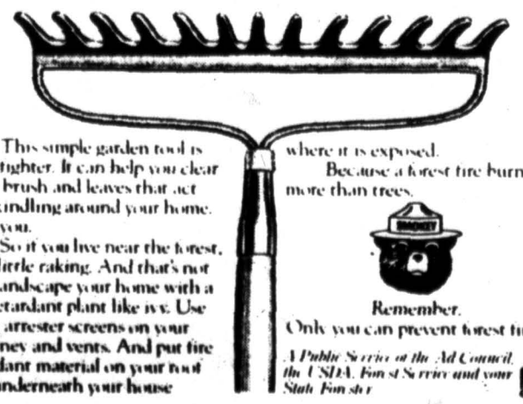
HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.



This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

THE GOOD NEWS IS YOU HAVE HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

Finding out you've got high blood pressure is half the battle. With a plan for exercise, weight control, salt reduction and medication, the rest is easy.

If you have high blood pressure, go on a good program and stick with it. And do what your doctor says. Then there probably won't be any bad news.

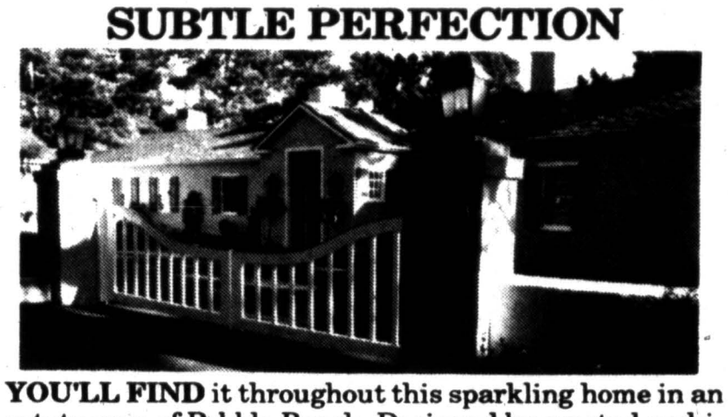
A DREAM COME TRUE

A DARLING Victorian, painted Newport blue and adorned with white trim, and set off in front by a gleaming white picket fence..just what you've always wanted in the way of a cozy cottage in Pacific Grove, 1903-style. Step onto the porch and pass through the doorway with its old-fashioned transom....and find yourself in a world of high ceilings, hardwood floors, and shutters at the windows. $333,000.

SUBTLE PERFECTION



YOU'LL FIND it throughout this sparkling home in an estate area of Pebble Beach. Designed by a noted architect, this fine home has been newly renovated but its architectural dignity has been respected. The main floor features a series of handsome rooms — a spacious living room with marble fireplace...an elegantly appointed dining room...incredible kitchen...and luxurious master suite. Downstairs are two comfortable bedrooms and a den/office. You'll love the panoramic views of the ocean and Point Lobos. Call for a private preview. $2,400,000.

VIEW THE OCEAN FROM YOUR CHOICE OF SUNDECKS

ON THE FIRST BLOCK of Carmel's Scenic Road, a beautifully renovated home with TWO sundecks to capture stunning views of sand, surf, and sky. Not only that, the decks are wonderful for entertaining — but so is the rest of the house. The living room has picture windows that frame the sumptuous views, and there are also a stylish dining room and three bedrooms, each with bath. A one-of-a-kind home in a one-of-a-kind location. $1,900,000.

PRIVACY WITHOUT ISOLATION

A COMSTOCK-BUILT home on a generous oak-studded half-acre in the estate area of Carmel's Hatton Fields — that in itself ought to be an assurance of a quality buy in a home. The house itself was just made for a family — four bedrooms each with its own bath, plus a separate guest unit. The big living room with its open-beamed ceiling and big fireplaces looks out to the lovely garden and its mature oaks. Outside is a brick patio with a firepit where you can entertain al fresco. You might want to do some updating, but the house is quite adequate for family living as it now stands. Reduced to $850,000.
